Index to Volume 2

A

ALBRECHT, RUTH E.—Activities, interests, and needs for gerontologists. P. 149

B

BARTON, M. G.—Group counselling with older hospital patients. P. 51

BAULCH, NORMA—(See Cowgill, D. O.)

BEATTIE, W. J., JR.—Editorial: New perspectivies in social welfare research in gerontology. P. 66

BIRREN, J. E.—Fifteen annual meetings later. P. 179

BLUESTONE, E. M.—Editorial: In defence of the elderly. P. 112

BOOKS—Pp. 64, 108, 174

BUCKE, MARJORIE—Some recent developments in the care of the elderly in the United Kingdom. P. 42

BUSSE, E. W.—Some emotional complications of chronic disease. P. 153

C

COHEN, E. S.—The state unit on aging: A point of view on structure. P. 14

COHEN, W. J.—Eventful years in programs for the elderly. P. 192

COTTRELL, W. F.—Editorial: Organization of federal programs for the aging. P. 176

COWGILL, D. O.,—AND NORMA BAULCH. The use of leisure time by older people. P. 47.

Current activities and events in the field of aging. Pp. 57, 102, 167, 223

D

Development fund of the Gerontological Society. Pp. 3, 67

DUNN, H. L.—Physiological adequacy and longevity type II. P. 18

E

Editorials—Pp. 2, 66, 112, 176
Inside old age (S. L. Pressey) P. 2
New perspectives in social welfare research in gerontology (W. M. Beattie, Jr.) P. 66
In defence of the elderly (E. M. Bluestone) P. 112
Organization of federal programs for the aging (W. F. Cottrell) P. 176

F

FALEK, A.—(See Jarvik, Lissy F.)

G

Gerontological Society meets at Deauville Hotel in Miami Beach in November. P. 69

H

HAYNES, MARIA S.—The supposedly golden age for the aged in ancient Greece. (A study of literary concepts of old age.) P. 93

JARVIK, LISSY F.—KALLMANN, F. K., AND FALEK, A. Psychiatric genetics and aging. P. 164

K

KALLMANN, F. K. (See Jarvik, Lissy F.)

KENT, D. P.—Progress for older people—how far in the coming decade? P. 196

KUTNER, B.—The social nature of aging. P. 5

L

LEHMANN, H. C.—More about age and achievement. P. 141

LIPMAN, A.—Health insecurity of the aged. P. 99

LISSITZ, S.—Patient-family interrelationships in a geriatric hospital. P. 134

M

MARSHALL, HELEN—AND MELITA H. ODEN. The status of the mature gifted individual as a basis for evaluation of the aging process. P. 201

MILLICAN, R. D.—An expenditures' analysis of retired persons. P. 71

MORGAN, AGNES FAY—Nutrition of the aging. P. 77

N

NATHAN, THEA—Social activities for older people with special reference to the needs of immigrants from different cultural backgrounds. P. 32

NEEDHAM, A. E.—Is there a second childhood? P. 9

News of gerontological organizations. P. 106

O

ODEN, MELITA H.—(See Marshall, Helen)

OMACHI, CHIYO—Gerontology practiced in Japan. P. 74

ORGANIZATION SECTION—Pp. 109, 228

P

PANTELL, DORA F.—Methodological implications of day center teaching experience. P. 89

PLUNKETT, MARGARET L.—The older worker in the job market. P. 28

POLNER, W.—The aged in politics: A successful example. The NPA and the passage of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1934. P. 207

POORMAN, W. F.—Senior citizens in the labor market. P. 23

PRESSEY, S. L.—Editorial: Inside old age. P. 2

Program of the 15th annual meeting of the Gerontological Society. P. 116

Prologue—The 15th annual meeting and scientific sessions of the Gerontological Society. P. 115

R

ROSE, A. M.—The subculture of the aging: A topic for sociological research. P. 123

ROSCOW, I.—Old age: One moral dilemma of an affluent society. P. 182

SHUPACK, M. B.—Research on employment problems of older workers. P. 157

SOBEL, H.—Aging and cellular malnutrition. P. 85

STOREY, RUTH T. Who attends a senior activity center? A comparison of Little House members with nonmembers in the same community. P. 216

W

WAX, M.—The changing role of the home for the aged. P. 128

Z

ZELDITCH, M.—The home for the aged—a community. P. 37

Index to Volume 2

A

ALBRECHT, RUTH E.—Activities, interests, and needs for gerontologists. P. 149

B

BARTON, M. G.—Group counselling with older hospital patients. P. 51

BAULCH, NORMA—(See Cowgill, D. O.)

BEATTIE, W. J., JR.—Editorial: New perspectivies in social welfare research in gerontology. P. 66

BIRREN, J. E.—Fifteen annual meetings later. P. 179

BLUESTONE, E. M.—Editorial: In defence of the elderly. P. 112

BOOKS—Pp. 64, 108, 174

BUCKE, MARJORIE—Some recent developments in the care of the elderly in the United Kingdom. P. 42

BUSSE, E. W.—Some emotional complications of chronic disease. P. 153

C

COHEN, E. S.—The state unit on aging: A point of view on structure. P. 14

COHEN, W. J.—Eventful years in programs for the elderly. P. 192

COTTRELL, W. F.—Editorial: Organization of federal programs for the aging. P. 176

COWGILL, D. O.,—AND NORMA BAULCH. The use of leisure time by older people. P. 47.

Current activities and events in the field of aging. Pp. 57, 102, 167, 223

D

Development fund of the Gerontological Society. Pp. 3, 67

DUNN, H. L.—Physiological adequacy and longevity type II. P. 18

E

Editorials—Pp. 2, 66, 112, 176
Inside old age (S. L. Pressey) P. 2
New perspectives in social welfare research in gerontology (W. M. Beattie, Jr.) P. 66
In defence of the elderly (E. M. Bluestone) P. 112
Organization of federal programs for the aging (W. F. Cottrell) P. 176

F

FALEK, A.—(See Jarvik, Lissy F.)

G

Gerontological Society meets at Deauville Hotel in Miami Beach in November. P. 69

H

HAYNES, MARIA S.—The supposedly golden age for the aged in ancient Greece. (A study of literary concepts of old age.) P. 93

JARVIK, LISSY F.—KALLMANN, F. K., AND FALEK, A. Psychiatric genetics and aging. P. 164

K

KALLMANN, F. K. (See Jarvik, Lissy F.)

KENT, D. P.—Progress for older people—how far in the coming decade? P. 196

KUTNER, B.—The social nature of aging. P. 5

L

LEHMANN, H. C.—More about age and achievement. P. 141

LIPMAN, A.—Health insecurity of the aged. P. 99

LISSITZ, S.—Patient-family interrelationships in a geriatric hospital. P. 134

M

MARSHALL, HELEN—AND MELITA H. ODEN. The status of the mature gifted individual as a basis for evaluation of the aging process. P. 201

MILLICAN, R. D.—An expenditures' analysis of retired persons. P. 71

MORGAN, AGNES FAY—Nutrition of the aging. P. 77

N

NATHAN, THEA—Social activities for older people with special reference to the needs of immigrants from different cultural backgrounds. P. 32

NEEDHAM, A. E.—Is there a second childhood? P. 9

News of gerontological organizations. P. 106

O

ODEN, MELITA H.—(See Marshall, Helen)

OMACHI, CHIYO—Gerontology practiced in Japan. P. 74

ORGANIZATION SECTION—Pp. 109, 228

P

PANTELL, DORA F.—Methodological implications of day center teaching experience. P. 89

PLUNKETT, MARGARET L.—The older worker in the job market. P. 28

POLNER, W.—The aged in politics: A successful example. The NPA and the passage of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1934. P. 207

POORMAN, W. F.—Senior citizens in the labor market. P. 23

PRESSEY, S. L.—Editorial: Inside old age. P. 2

Program of the 15th annual meeting of the Gerontological Society. P. 116

Prologue—The 15th annual meeting and scientific sessions of the Gerontological Society. P. 115

R

ROSE, A. M.—The subculture of the aging: A topic for sociological research. P. 123

ROSCOW, I.—Old age: One moral dilemma of an affluent society. P. 182

SHUPACK, M. B.—Research on employment problems of older workers. P. 157

SOBEL, H.—Aging and cellular malnutrition. P. 85

STOREY, RUTH T. Who attends a senior activity center? A comparison of Little House members with nonmembers in the same community. P. 216

W

WAX, M.—The changing role of the home for the aged. P. 128

Z

ZELDITCH, M.—The home for the aged—a community. P. 37